Education, Healing and Inspiration

Message from Ted

Dear VCC Community,

I just came across this quote by Thomas Sowell - “The most basic question is not what is best, but who shall decide what is best.” I suggest Sowell’s quote succinctly describes the battle we are in. We are in the process of determining whether we live in a country where the individual decides what is best for his or her life and family, or whether governments and unelected bureaucrats, both nationally and globally get to decide.

Canada was founded on the basis of individual rights and freedoms. This is one of the reasons Canada had been envied world wide. However, over the last three years every institution and safeguard that we thought was in place to defend our individual rights and freedoms capitulated to the tyranny of state control.

It has become evident that the responsibility to protect individual rights and freedoms does not rest with governments, law enforcement, or the courts as we have been lead to believe. This is one of the many lies we have been told. Rather, the responsibility to protect our rights and freedoms also belongs to us - the people. David Icke states:

“Fascism is not imposed by fascists – there are never enough of them. Fascism is imposed by the population acquiescing to fascism.”

The reality is that these psychopaths are not as powerful as we may think. Their insatiable desire for control is not a sign of their omnipotence, but rather their insecurity. They know, better than us, that when we stop being afraid and stop complying with their dictates, their hold on us is over. The result is that their reign of terror will come to an abrupt end.

These last few years are a wake up call for those of us that value freedom and want to ensure that our children and grandchildren experience the freedoms we experienced. This is a war between good and evil. This is a war that cannot be avoided. This is our war of independence. And our most powerful weapon is to simply not comply with anything and undermines the rights and freedoms of self and others. Now is the time to stand up and stand free. Without freedom, nothing else matters.

Peace Begins With Me

Author - Ted Kuntz

Feeding the Positive Wolf

I've discovered it is possible to think and act in new ways. It is possible to change the direction I'm headed. It is possible to increase my experience of peace, joy, and happiness. It is possible to feed the positive wolf.

Being peaceful, joyful, and happy does not depend on being good enough, smart enough, or deserving enough, nor does it require unique or special circumstances. The ability to experience these states simply has to do with knowing how. I believe our society does a poor job in educating people how to be in a state of peace, joy or happiness. Many of our cultural institutions are better at teaching fear than trust, more accomplished in promoting judgment than acceptance, and in encouraging negative thoughts instead of positive thoughts. This is why I contend most people simply don't know how to be happy, peaceful, and joyful.

One of my core beliefs is every person does the best they can with what they know and have. I use the analogy of a toolbox when describing this idea. I call the different skills and knowledge, tools, and the combined wisdom and learnings gained over a lifetime become one's toolbox. In reality we are born with an empty toolbox. Some individuals are fortunate to have wise teachers and rich life experiences, which contribute to the adding of tools to their toolbox. Others are less fortunate, and their toolbox remains largely empty.

I believe the inability to achieve peace, joy, and happiness is due to a lack of tools. Therefore, this book describes the tools which I discovered point me in the direction of peace, joy, and happiness.

Waking Up to Medical Tyranny

In the 2018 Spring/Summer edition of The Vaccine Choice Journal, VCC co-founder and journal editor Edda West featured an article entitled, “Immunity and Impunity: Corruption in the State-Pharma Nexus” by Professor Paddy Rawlinson, PhD.

Both Professor Rawlinson’s article and Edda’s editorial highlight important history to the subject Edda references as “Medical Tyranny”. Links have been provided to the original 2018 Spring/Summer edition of The Vaccine Choice Journal to allow the reading of both the article and the editorial.

Feature Poem

Peace, Love & Hope

What an intriguing season on which we're about to embark;
Glorious, challenging, beautiful yet desolate and stark!

Times rapidly changing, people awakening
Thoughts and understanding aligning and straightening!

Do you feel this shift continuing to take shape?

From divisions, embattled fronts - we're beginning to escape!

Celebrations of religious and cultural special days abound.

Wondrous connections with relatives and innumerable friends resound!

Although for me the unbidden winter chill is difficult to endure. The elegance of a snow-carpeted scene is delightful and demure.

It's heartening to observe people returning to virtues of old!

Retrieving essential principles: truth, freedom, love, and service-these were once extolled!

Please nestle in your hearts what miraculous results kindness can invoke! Hope, support and an achievable path forward these are likely to evoke.

Let us pray for a golden age to envelop our resplendent earth. We'll generate great beauty and together create a magnificent rebirth!

A Notable Quote

“By engaging with viewpoints that challenge our own, we are compelled to question our assumptions, re-evaluate our beliefs, and strengthen our arguments.

The presence of dissenting voices fosters intellectual rigor, encourages broader perspectives, and ultimately leads to more informed decision-making. Throughout history, Greek and Roman philosophers have emphasized the importance of open discourse and the practice of disagreement, recognizing that it is through the crucible of debate that the best-backed position can emerge.”

– Dr. James Lyons-Weiler in "The Wisdom of the Minority and the Value of Informed Dissent"
