Education, Healing and Inspiration

Message from Ted

Dear VCC Community,

I've been struggling trying to make sense of the state of the human condition today and how good people were captured by the COVID narrative to the degree that they were complicit in the closure of businesses, faith communities, schools, the ending of livelihoods, the condemning of people to death by withholding treatments, and the violation of fundamental rights and freedoms.

To that end I'm reading two books that are relevant – Unvaccinated – How Canada Turned to Hatred and Division by Rejean Venne, and Columbus and Other Cannibals – The Wetiko

Disease of Exploitation, Imperialism, and Terrorism by Jack D. Forbes. In the forward to Columbus and Other Cannibals Derrick Jensen writes: “Why is the dominant culture so excruciatingly, relentlessly, insanely, genocidally, ecocidally, suicidally destructive?” And this was before the COVID debacle.

Venne writes: “What transpired over the last year was not a new phenomenon affecting Western society. Many great nations have succumbed to incredible hatred based on an ideology grounded in fear. Everyone likes to look back at unjust moments and assume they would have been one of the good guys.” But the reality is most participated in hatred and division. He adds – “We need to truly reflect on what went wrong . . . because we will be faced with more catastrophes or emergencies, which will invoke fear and test our desires to succumb to blame and hatred.”

If we are strong enough and courageous enough, we have an opportunity to better understand the human potential for evil and learn how to resist its force. But to do so we need to honestly acknowledge that we’ve entered a period of darkness that has the potential to destroy human civilization if we don’t learn from our mistakes. And, we need to recognize and learn from those who, in the face of abuse and adversity, stayed loving, honest and graceful. These role models include Drs. Hoffe, Trozzi, Phillips, Malthouse, Sean Taylor, Shawn Buckley and others, and of course, the truckers in the Freedom Convoy. They refused to succumb to anger and hate, and stayed in the light.

The only way forward is to stay loving, light and have the courage to tell the truth.

Memory says, "I did that."
Pride replies, "I couldn't have done that."
Eventually, memory yields.

Vera Sharav

Vera Sharav joins us to discuss her most recent accomplishment, the release of a five-part docuseries, Never Again is Now Global, which she directed. It was produced by the organization she leads, the Alliance for Human Research Protection (AHRP, www.ahrp.org).

Being a child survivor of the holocaust, Vera recognized the similarities between government responses to covid and the nazi regime she experienced. In 2020, she courageously spoke out, raising the alarm on what she saw happening across the globe. Through her tireless efforts, she reminds us all to resist the fear and propaganda that our government uses to manipulate us and to trust our intuition.

Tool #2 - Use Your Imagination Creatively

There is an expression that says, “All things are created twice - first in someone’s mind, then in physical form”. Our imagination is the mechanism that enables us to create. Creative people share one thing in common. They see their creation before they begin. If you ask, most artists will describe how they see the completed art before they begin. A painter sees the completed painting on the blank canvas; a sculptor sees her finished carving in the untouched block of wood; a musician knows what the music will sound like before the score is written.

Stories about golfers regularly describe how they see the shot before they hit the ball. Olympic athletes are taught to visualize their dive, run, performance, or routine over and over in their mind. They do this because imagining the outcome they desire contributes to their success.

Many medical practitioners also recognize the power of the imagination. Dr. Carl Simonton, a renowned cancer oncologist, used the power of the imagination to heal his patients. His research confirmed patients who regularly practiced positive imagining as part of their treatment had significantly better rates of recovery than patients who didn’t. Dr. Bernie

Segal, another oncologist and author of Love, Medicine, and Miracles discovered exactly the same phenomenon when he researched patients who outlived their terminal diagnosis, Segal discovered their positive imagination is what made these patients exceptional.

In 1952 Yale University conducted a study in its business school. The graduating class was asked, “Who has a written goal plan for his or her life?” Only three percent responded affirmatively. Twenty years later the same group was re-interviewed. The three percent who had written out their goals were profoundly more successful than the remaining ninety-seven percent who didn’t. Their study confirmed that visioning and goal setting contribute to success.

What do you imagine?
