

Physical Distancing is Ineffective and it Harms Our Children

Various governments and health authorities persist in imposing 'physical distancing' policies that are not only ineffective and a violation of our most basic rights and freedoms, they also have the potential to cause significant harm.

The negative consequences of imposed isolation, induced fear, learned germaphobia, and the loss of touch are measurable and severe.

We need to thoughtfully consider the harm that is being inflicted by these violations. How might the lives of our children be impacted by such measures?

There is simply no scientific evidence that masking is an effective method to prevent viral transmission and infection. So, the question must be asked:

What is the purpose of masking?

Mass Isolation Prevents Herd Immunity

Leading scientists, including German epidemiologist, Knut Wittkowski, have warned us that persistent physical distancing among low risk people like schoolchildren, may delay the development of natural herd immunity. Physical distancing actually prolongs an epidemic and prevents the progression of natural immunity that is key to protecting the wellbeing of the most vulnerable.

When children are deprived of social contact with other children, they suffer devastating consequences, both psychologically and physically, and are deprived of the opportunity to develop natural immunity that protects the child, the immunocompromised, and the elderly through the development of herd immunity.

"With all respiratory diseases, the only thing that stops the disease is 'herd immunity'"

- Knut Wittkowski - German Epidemiologist

"What can be done to end this epidemic? The answer is herd immunity. The bottom line is that herd immunity is what will stop the virus from spreading. Not containment. Not a vaccine. Not staying locked in our homes. It's time we had an honest conversation on how to move beyond containment."

- Martin Dubravec, M.D., Allergist and Clinical Immunologist

Why Impose Physical Distancing?

It's time to stand up and refuse to participate in these unjustified measures.

It's time to reclaim our freedom.

VaccineChoiceCanada.com

