To the attention of: Phillip Crawley, Publisher and CEO

Dear Mr. Crawley

As parents of children who have been injured and killed by vaccines, we can no longer sit passively as the Globe and Mail advocates for the elimination of informed consent and undermines our right to freedom of speech.

The Globe and Mail was instrumental in the efforts to remove international pro vaccine choice advocate Del Bigtree as a speaker at the Total Health Show in Toronto in April. (Toronto health conference cancels appearance by anti-vaccine activist Del Bigtree, February 7, 2019)

<https://www.theglobeandmail.com/canada/article-toronto-health-conference-cancels-appearance-by-anti-vaccine-activist>

It is our assumption that the effort to undermine freedom of speech and impose vaccinations by coercion is more than the opinion of writer, Carly Weeks, and is supported at the highest level of the Globe and Mail. It is ironic that whilst the Globe and Mail purports to uphold freedom of speech, it is the very agent that undermines freedom of speech.

This letter and the enclosures is the first step in a deliberate effort to engage you personally and make you aware of the impact of current vaccine policies and practices. It is our expectation that armed with this information you will act in ways to safeguard and secure our rights and freedoms rather than erode them.

Vaccine Policy Should Be Transparent and Open to Debate

The vaccine industry ought to be able to win the argument for universal vaccination on its own merits without resorting to defamatory tactics to silence those who challenge this 'one-size-fits-all' ideology. Vaccine advocates, like Ms. Weeks, seem disinterested in any perspective or fact that doesn't serve their interests. When one's view is that constricted it is doubtful their judgment can be trusted.

It is undeniable that the current vaccine protocols in Ontario are both coercive and deceptive. Public Health knowingly withhold vaccine exemption information from the public with the aim to increase vaccine compliance and by extension boost pharmaceutical sales. And when these deceptive tactics don't suffice, they use the Mature Minor Doctrine to vaccinate children without the knowledge or consent of their parents.

One wonders why providing information to health consumers on their legal rights and product monograph information would be of concern to the Globe and Mail. A parent can't decide what is best for oneself and one's children without adequate information about the benefits and risks. Biased and distorted information that only presents one side is deceptive. Using scare propaganda does not serve the greater good – it only increases mistrust and undermines confidence. Good products, backed by solid evidence of safety and effectiveness, do not require coercion and misrepresentation.

The right to voluntary and informed consent is an inherent human right when considering any medical procedure and is a fundamental ethic in medicine. Yet the vaccine policy Ms. Weeks is actively lobbying for represents an all-out assault on this right, and it appears the Globe and Mail is endeavouring to make Canadians compliant with this violation of our liberties.

There is no medical justification at this time to advocate for the elimination of informed consent and basic human rights in Canada. To paraphrase John F Kennedy:

There is little value in insuring the survival of our children if our rights and freedoms do not survive with them.

Massive Fraud & Deception

The Globe and Mail is either knowingly complicit in the elimination of human rights including the right to informed consent, the right to body sovereignty, and the right to free will, or you are uninformed or misinformed of the ability of vaccines to contribute to the systemic harming of our children.

This is understandable as there is massive fraud and deception being promulgated by the patent drug industry. The demonstrable truth is that what the vaccine industry, government regulators and mainstream media say science says about vaccine safety and effectiveness and what science actually tells us are two completely different and contradictory things.

Included with this letter is a body of information and published scientific research that reveals the current state of vaccine safety. It explains the recognized ability of vaccine ingredients to cause neurological and immunological harm.

A Failing State of Children's Health

The undisputed fact is we are experiencing "a failing state of children's health". This is not my opinion; rather it is the conclusion of A Report for Children First Canada – August 2018. There is an explosion of allergic/anaphylactic diseases, autoimmune diseases, mental illness, and cancers that now afflict infants and children on a scale never before seen. This is especially evident in the epidemic increase in neurological disorders including autism, learning disabilities, ADHD, and seizure disorders.

- 1 in 6 children has a learning disability
- 1 in 8 children has asthma
- 1 in 10 children has Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder
- 1 in 20 children has a seizure disorder
- 1 in 30 children has a mental disorder

There is compelling evidence, much of it developed in the last ten years, that the injection of vaccine ingredients is contributing to the significant and permanent injury, even death of our infants and children. The level of public concern with the current vaccination practice has reached a crisis and the amount of scientific evidence of serious injury from vaccine policies and practices is now so compelling, that to continue ignoring it is morally unacceptable, even criminal, and can no longer be tolerated.

Needless-to-say, to accelerate the current vaccine practice by eliminating the right of parents to make informed decisions for their children, and to impose the injection of these complex biochemical ingredients with known risks of neuroimmune injuries and autoimmune disorders into healthy individuals would only add to the injuries and deaths of our children. We believe children have a right to be healthy, and that includes those who would be injured by vaccines. The Globe and Mail ought to be insisting that all children have the right to be healthy.

Purpose of this Letter

It is well past time that the Globe and Mail started doing real investigative journalism on the vaccine issue, and it is well past time that public health officials and the media started taking parents' concerns seriously.

We need an advocate in Canada's mainstream media who will do real investigative journalism, ask the questions, dig into the new and emerging scientific literature, and demand the kind of accountability that will help safeguard our children. Will the Globe and Mail be this advocate for truth? Will the Globe and Mail hold vaccine manufacturers and our government regulators accountable? Will the Globe and Mail safeguard our basic human right to voluntary, informed consent, and the sovereignty of the human body?

Mr. Crawley, you and your editors may choose to look the other way, however, our intention is that you can never again use the defence that you did not know. The future of our children is at risk. What will you do? What will the Globe and Mail do?

We await your considered response.

Sincerely,

Ted Kuntz, parent of a child who suffered catastrophic injuries and death following vaccination
